AGNES ASTRAL AGNES

Originally conceived as a candelabra, Agnes takes its inspiration from the fictional heroine of the same name, a worker in the world's oldest profession during the 1849 California Gold Rush. The modular system would allow Agnes easy setup in her makeshift "workspace." In this version, glowing glass tubes replace the candles. Articulated joints allow the glass to be arranged in a multitude of ways.

Designer

Lindsey Adelman designs and produces lighting in Manhattan. Lindsey discovered Industrial Design while working at the Smithsonian and introducing herself to a woman carving French fries out of foam for an exhibition. Thinking that looked like more fun than her editorial job, she left to get a degree in ID from the Rhode Island School of Design in 1996. Her work has been exhibited at the Cooper-Hewitt Museum, Design Miami, and Nilufar Gallery. Her body of work has grown to include vessels, jewelry, blankets, wallpaper, tiles, and video. Always asking the question "what if?" the studio now embraces a philanthropic mission supporting Robin Hood Foundation to fight poverty in NYC. She lives with her designer husband Ian and their son Finn in Brooklyn.
